

Year-End Gratitude and Community Building

Project Ideas:

As you wrap up your school year, take time to express gratitude for what you accomplished this year and those who helped you along the way. Celebrate new friendships and partnerships

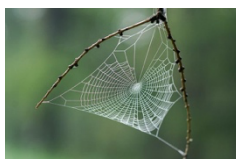

Create a gratitude jar for yourself, for your family or as a gift.

Celebration Wall: Line a wall with blank paper and invite club members to draw or write about their favorite club accomplishment of the year. Display the results in a prominent place or cut it apart and allow club members to take pieces home to commemorate their year.

Have club members write a letter to themselves reflecting on what they've learned this year and how they will apply that as they move onto the next year. Send the letters to them a month or two into the new year so club members can reminisce about last year and remind themselves what they hope to accomplish this year.

Reinforce the sense of community your club built this year by Weaving a Web. Details here: <https://bit.ly/39fLSjo>

Give Back: Do a project to give back to your school: a school clean up, plant some flowers, a recognition board for faculty and staff.

Build your own project to show gratitude or to celebrate your accomplishments this year. Be sure to share it with us at <https://bit.ly/3f2zfrK>.
